

A BETTER LIFE.
The best in medicine.

About 75 miles south of Nashville is a picturesque town surrounded by three beautiful lakes and populated by roughly 20,000 warm and welcoming Tennesseans, proud to call this historic community home.

Supporting this classic American town and the surrounding region is an outstanding hospital with a name instantly associated with medical excellence: Vanderbilt Tullahoma-Harton Hospital.

Accredited by The Joint Commission, Vanderbilt Tullahoma-Harton Hospital is a 135-bed facility offering inpatient and outpatient medical and surgical services that include an accredited Chest Pain Center, 14-bed critical care unit, imaging services (including nuclear medicine), labor and delivery with a Level 2 nursery, orthopedic surgery, rehabilitation, and more.

Our physicians, nurses, technicians and staff embrace the many benefits of living and working in a tight-knit community blessed with abundant natural beauty, a strong and diverse economy, beautiful and affordable homes, arts and entertainment, countless sports and recreational opportunities, and a comfortable, small-town culture. It is a rare combination: a place to enjoy the good life, the simpler life, while benefiting from the world-class resources of Vanderbilt Health.

Imagine yourself making a profound difference in the lives of your patients, yourself and your family. Imagine yourself at Vanderbilt Tullahoma-Harton Hospital.

Residents of Tullahoma enjoy:

- Outstanding schools. With a student-teacher ratio of 20:1, the Tullahoma public school system consistently ranks among the highest performing in Tennessee. Students attend four neighborhood elementary schools, two middle schools, and a comprehensive high school. The historic Webb School is a private option that offers challenging academics with an emphasis on independent thinking, creative initiative, personal integrity, and civic responsibility.
- Strong community. Tullahoma is consistently ranked among the top micropolitan cities in the state, and was recently rated sixth among the best places to live in Tennessee (Niche.com). With our state-of-the-art gigabit fiber-optic system and high-speed internet, we're not exactly cut off from the modern world. It's a compact, walkable town, and you're always just a short stroll from unique shops, retail centers, restaurants, theaters and entertainment.
- Outdoor recreation. For hiking, camping, water skiing, fishing and other outdoor activities, Tullahoma is the place to be, highlighted by our three popular lakes: Normandy, Tims Ford, and Woods Reservoir. Grab a canoe or kayak and float down the Elk or Duck rivers, or experience the natural beauty of Short Springs Natural Area and Rutledge Falls.
- Local and nearby attractions. There's plenty to do and see in Tullahoma, including the Ole Shed Brewing Company, Granddaddy's Farm, the Beechcraft Heritage Museum, the University of Tennessee Space Institute, and the George Dickel Distillery, part of our famous Whiskey Trail (tnwhiskeytrail.com). Tullahoma is centrally located about an hour and fifteen minutes from Nashville, Chattanooga, and Huntsville.
